

"I like your sick sense of humor."
-Drea from KDHX (St. Louis Public Radio Station)

"In an age where exploitative corporate entertainment, Myspace-driven social isolation, and consumerist frenzy tend to dominate mainstream culture, BPB seeks edginess in the unexpected and under-appreciated. In the sense that sex is liberating and personally empowering, Bench Press Burlesque is damn sexy."

-Confluence Article, St. Louis' Radical Newspaper, by Ben West, Nov.06

"What struck me about this classic burlesque was the thin line between audience and performers...I loved it. There was a feeling of "we're all in this together" that was uplifting and empowering."

-Artemis' Blog www.dangerousintersection.org

"With all the forms oppression takes, it was refreshing to see a group willing to fight back on a political-sexual front. ... an all-out ballsy, sex-positive cultural critique."

-James Nokes, The Day After | Love-O-Rama and a Hope for Valentines in Playback magazine

"I'll never be able to look at my roommate's bike the same again."
